Canteen installs Smart Stores in Sonoma County

Canteen of Northern California is proud to announce the installation of several "Smart Stores" throughout select locations in Sonoma County.

Smart Stores are the latest technology that allows Canteen to provide Cold Food, Premium Beverages, Healthy Snacks as well as traditional vending fare to customers that meet population requirements.

The best thing about Smart Stores is the elevated customer experience. You can see what you want, pick it up then put it back if you decide not to purchase. You can see the freshness, read the nutritional information and feel the product before you decide to buy.

Canteen has now installed four Smart Stores and has several more locations scheduled for placement.

Operations manager Shaun Dayton says, "These truly are an upgrade to traditional vending machines. We have seen a sales increase in every location where we have placed a Smart Store." Canteen is looking forward to installing more in the next several months.

To see a public area Smart Store in use, you can go to the Sonoma County Airport baggage claim area or the Lindley STEM Center at Santa Rosa Junior College.

Food Giants Seek Tariff Exemptions

Inflation and tariffs may affect vending machine prices

Major U.S. food manufacturers, including PepsiCo, Conagra, and J.M. Smucker, are requesting targeted exemptions from newly imposed tariffs on specific imported ingredients, according to a report by US News and World Report. The request, in a letter sent to the Trump administration, outlines the companies' concerns about the potential impact of tariffs on consumer prices and manufacturing costs.

The companies are seeking exemptions for ingredients that are not readily available from domestic U.S. sources, such as cocoa, coffee, oats, spices, tropical fruits and tin mill steel. The letter argues that these exemptions are necessary to protect U.S. manufacturers and mitigate the risk of increased costs being passed on to consumers, who are already experiencing the effects of recent inflation.

The Consumer Brands Association, representing these and other consumer product companies, emphasized that the requested exemptions are intended to be "targeted and carefully calibrated" to support U.S. manufacturing while also addressing concerns about rising consumer prices. The letter also highlighted the importance of strategically implementing trade enforcement measures, including tariffs, to ensure they protect domestic manufacturers.
